Mobs Mill in Algeria, Posing New Threats

By ANDREW BORWIEC

ALGIERS (AP)—A mob of some 5,000 roared through the lower reaches of the Moslem quarter today shouting nationalist rebel slogans and taunting French soldiers guarding entrances to the native city.

"Swarms of Moslems went through the twisted streets of the Casbah shouting 'Abbas to power'—rebel Premier Fehral Abbas—and 'Moslem Algeria'."

Riot police and soldiers stood tensely, guns and mortars ready to fire.

A crowd of Moslems greeted Associated Press staff members, Andrew Borowiec and David Mason when the two entered the Casbah. They raised Mason's arms over his head and cheered him when told he was an American newsmen.

"This is the insurrection," Moslems shouted. "We are fighting to the end."

Other Moslems told Borowiec and Mason that soldiers "killed and wounded many" during disturbances during the night. French officials said shots were fired but that there were no deaths.

It was one of the wildest demonstrations ever to rock the Casbah. It centered around the Jewish synagogue which was looted Monday. Some Moslems began looting stores. The crowds swayed back and forth in emotional abandon.

Al Oran, to the west, always reported quiet. A general strike which paralyzed the city's economy was over. The right-wing Front for French Algeria launched the strike then rescinded it.

Moslem rioters and the determined resistance of French soldiers have confronted France with one of the gravest situations in her attempts to end six years of the nationalist fight for independence.

No one any longer spoke of fraternity between Moslem and Frenchmen after five days of bloody rioting which killed 123 persons and wounded more than 500.

The Moslems, who sustained most casualties, shouted that French bullets had destroyed all hopes of Algerian union with France.

French settlers, fired on by French troops Tuesday for the first time since the riots began, vowed never to accept President Charles de Gaulle's plan for home rule in Algeria.

De Gaulle chopped a day off his tour of Algeria and arrived home in Paris, announcing he will stand by his plan to end the fighting which has hied Franco white.

De Gaulle left from an airport a few miles outside Bone, where French Foreign Legionnaires fired on Moslems and then directed point-blank fire at marching European settlers.

Among the dead were seven Moslems and two Europeans. Fifty-five persons were wounded.

In Oran, in Western Algeria, 17 Moslems were wounded in clashes with troops. Riot police threw concussion grenades among Europeans demonstrating against Moslem nationalists.

In New York, the Soviet Union charged that the United Nations that the United States had sent U2 spy planes over rebel areas of Algeria to help the French. The United States called this "a complete fabrication."

Hope Band to March at Dallas

LITTLE ROCK (AP)—An Arkansas float and three bands from the state will take part in the Dec. 31 Cotton Bowl parade in Dallas, Tex., a preliminary to the Jan. 2 Cotton bowl football contest in which the Arkansas Razorbacks meet the Blue Devils of Duke.

The float will depict the merger of the Old South and the great Southwest in Arkansas. Ted Woods, state Publicity and Parks Commission director, said Tuesday.

The University of Arkansas and high schools at Hope and Stuttgart will have bands in the parade, Woods said.

About 30,000 Arkansas fans, including Gov. and Mrs. Orval E. Faubus, are expected to attend.

Congo Seizes Ex-Belgian Airport

LEOPOLDVILLE, the Congo (AP)—The Congolese army has taken over the former Belgian airport at Kitona, bringing a protest today from the United Nations.

About 250 soldiers swooped on the vast air base guarded by Moroccan of the U.N. force.

The Moroccans put up no resistance to avoid bloodshed, the U.N. Command reported.

The head of the U.N. Congo mission, Rajeshwar Dayal of India, reported to Secretary-General Dag Hammarskjold that the takeover was "a flagrant interference with the mandate given to the United Nations by the Security Council" and a "deliberate act of aggression against the United Nations."

Western diplomats said Col. Joseph Mobutu, army chief, and the head of his provisional government, Justin Bomboko, claimed no orders had been given for the base to be taken by force.

Kiwanians Send $582 to Colony

A check in the amount of $582.82 was mailed today to the Arkansas Children's Colony at Conway by Hope Kiwanis Club to help erect a new chapel for retarded children of Arkansas.

Kiwanis Clubs all over the state sponsored the event in an effort to raise a $150,000 construction fund. Part of the money raised locally was through a chili supper in October at the high school.

Other proceeds came from volunteer donations and church groups. Mrs. B. C. Hyatt's choral group from Hope High presented the program at yesterday's Kiwanis luncheon. Appropriate Christmas music in the form of solos, trios, quartets and group singing was presented.

Japs to Trade More With China

OKYO (AP)—Japan today disclosed plans to ease curbs on trade with Communist China. The move could open the way for the first direct business between Japan and the China mainland in more than 24 years.

Peiping cut off trade with Japan in anger over an alleged insult to its flag in Nagasaki in May 1958.

East Painfully Digs Out of Storm; 220 Die

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Slowly, painfully, the Eastern United States, still gripped by an unrelenting arctic cold, dug itself out Wednesday from the worst autumn storm in its history. As it did so, a new storm hit New Mexico and spread across the Southwest.

The toll of storm-related deaths passed 220, and the cost in lost business and to the expense of snow removal ran into millions of dollars.

The cold which ranged into the below-zero regions in some areas, had a cruel companion; the wind. It stung the faces of motorists trying to dig out from streets still littered with abandoned vehicles; it blew the snow's fine powder into electric-train engines and stalled motors; and it covered ordinary objects with drifting snow and turned them into strange, white shapes.

As millions chopped at ice and shoveled snow, it was no comfort to read that in Moscow, normally one of the icebox cities of the world, the citizens were complaining because unseasonable warmth had ruined the usual skating and skiing.

Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller of New York ordered out the State National Guard to help clear abandoned vehicles from New York City's snow-clogged streets.

In the Southwest up to 12 inches of snow fell in the high mountains of New Mexico, and snow was general in a belt across West Big Bend country. In the flatlands the fall was generally six inches or less and in some places was mixed with sleet and rain. The big Eastern storm had started in the Southwest.

On the Eastern seaboard no relief from the subnormal cold was in sight, although some moderation was predicted during today and Thursday.

Transportation improved, although delays on railroads and buses were still expectable. Airports resumed full flight schedules, but delays were probable because some runways had yet to be cleared of snow.

Jet Makes a 10,000 Mile Nonstop Trip

EDWARDS AIR FORCE BASE, Calif. (AP)—A U.S. Air Force B52G jet bomber landed today after a 10,000-mile nonstop flight without refueling, breaking two world long-distance flight records, the Air Force announced.

The eight-jet Boeing bomber was aloft 19 hours, 45 minutes after taking off at 7:07 a.m. Tuesday from the runway on which it landed.

It was flown by a crew from the 5th Bombardment Wing at Travis AFB, Calif., on a closed circuit course to El Paso, Tex.; Andrews AFB, Md.; Harmon Base, Newfoundland; Etelson AFB, Fairbanks, Alaska; Phillips, S.D., and back here.

Seesaw Fight for Control of Vinetiane

By GEOFFREY GOULD

WASHINGTON (AP)—A seesaw battle has been raging between pro- and anti-Communist Laotian forces for control of the Asian country's capital, Vientiane. The latest report received here said the pro-Communists had recaptured the city.

The sporadic fighting, punctuated by light rifle and mortar fire, began at noon Tuesday, when the pro-Western forces of Gen. Phoumi Nosavan began pushing the pro-Communists under Capt. Kong Le out of the city.

By nightfall Tuesday, Phoumi's forces seemed to be in control. But a dispatch today said: Kong Le's troops had rallied Tuesday night and by dawn were again in control of the embattled capital of the strife-torn land.

The dispatches were the pooled reports of a handful of Western correspondents in Vientiane. Normal communications had broken down, and the telegraph office had been shelled. Perhaps for this reason, the correspondents asked the U. S. Embassy in Vientiane to transmit their combined dispatches. They were distributed in Washington to the news agencies represented by the correspondent onts through the Voice of America, an arm of the State Department.

The Associated Press correspondent in Vientiane is Roy Es-sayan.

Although control of the capital tipped back and forth from one side to the other in less than 24 hours, the dispatches said the fighting generally was light. Only a few buildings were damaged by shellfire, and apparently no foreigners were killed or wounded.

The troubles in Laos began last Aug. 9 when Kong Le, a Communist-oriented paratroop commander, precipitated an overthrow of the pro-Western government.

Prince Souvanna Phouma set up a neutralist regime. At one point he authorized Soviet planes to fly in gasoline and food to Vientiane. But Souvanna Phouma fled to neighboring Cambodia last Friday. Various factions tried to take charge. Kong Le's strength was beefed up by artillery and ammunition flown in by the Russians from Hanoi, the dispatches said. A pro-Communist group called the Pathet Lao was directed to join Kong Le's forces.

King Savang Vathana issued a royal decree ordering the leftist government to dissolve. A government under Prince Boun Oum was announced by Gen. Phoumi Nosavan's forces from their strong hold in Savannakhet.

When Souvanna Phoumi fled Friday, he handed the government over to a military committee.

But on Sunday a leftist politician named Quinim Pholsena announced he was in charge. Pholsena fled the capital when Gen. Phoumi's anti-Communist troops moved into the city Tuesday, and his present whereabouts are unknown.

Kennedy Will Find Byrd in Tax Cut Path

By JACK BELL

WASHINGTON (AP)—President-elect John F. Kennedy is going to find Sen. Harry P. Byrd, D-Va., standing uncompromisingly against any shot-in-the-arm tax cut to counter the economic downturn.

Byrd, who heads the Senate Finance Committee which would have to pass on any such reduction, said he believes any action to cut taxes which would result in a budget deficit "would be the worst thing we could do."

The Virginia senator said in an interview he bases his opinion on his study in Europe this fall of the drain on the American gold supply. This problem has perplexed the retiring Eisenhower administration and promises to become one of Kennedy's major headaches when he takes office in January.

"If we go into any deficit financing, it is going to undermine further the already weakened confidence abroad in the dollar," Byrd said. "It would be almost certain to result in a further flight of gold."

"Piling up deficits is no longer merely a matter of adding to our national debt. If we don't protect the position of the dollar in world exchange, we will be courting disaster."

Byrd, who has denounced the platform on which Kennedy was elected and who did not support the Democratic nominee, indicated he believes the gold threat will act as a brake on any large spending increases the president-elect might be tempted to submit to Congress.

If he accepts the weight of opinion among his advisers, Kennedy is not likely to propose any public works spending program to meet a recession. Most of these advisers think such programs operate too slowly to help in a temporary recession.

Kennedy said during the presidential campaign that a temporary reduction in some taxes would be considered if the business recession he contended was under way then should deepen this winter.

Subsequently several economists told a Senate-house committee designated by the president-elect to survey economic conditions that taxes ought to be cut if unemployment goes beyond six million. Unemployment hit 4,031,000 in November or 6.3 per cent of the labor force.

Texan May Be Named Agri Secretary

WASHINGTON (AP)—President-elect John F. Kennedy was quoted as saying today he is considering appointing Rep. W. J. Ponge, D-Tex., as secretary of agriculture.

Rep. Albert Thomas, D-Tex., said Kennedy told him that during a conference at the president-elect's home here.

This did not seem to rule out the possibility that several others who have been mentioned for the agriculture post are also still being considered.

Some of Kennedy's campaign remarks have been interpreted as a promise the post would go to a Midwesterner.

Standing in front of the president-elect's Georgetown home, Thomas told newsmen in response to a question that they had discussed possibilities for secretary of agriculture.

"I told him we have got a good candidate in Texas, and he said he is giving him consideration," Thomas said.

The president-elect's morning callers included several other Congress members and his Secretary of Commerce-designate, Gov. Luther Hodges of North Carolina.

Hodges met with Kennedy for about 30 minutes.

Hodges pictured Kennedy as "pleasant as always, and on the ball as always."

He added that he and Kennedy talked over several men Hodges has in mind for under secretary of commerce, and for positions in the field of international trade.

The governor said no conclusions were reached regarding prospective appointees, and added that none will be for some time.

There was a possibility of Kennedy's announcing another appointment to his cabinet during the day, but Hodges said in response to a question that Kennedy had not discussed that matter with him.

Kennedy now has filled five cabinet posts and still has five to go.

Farmers Give Approval to Quotas

LITTLE ROCK (AP)—Arkansas farmers gave overwhelming support to continued marketing quotas and acreage controls on the 1961 upland cotton crop and quotas and price supports on the rice crop.

The state Agriculture, Stabilization and Conservation Office said cotton controls were approved by a vote of 12,268 to 273, with 19.5 per cent of the eligible voters in 73 cotton growing counties voting. Approval was by 97.8 per cent.

The vote in the rice referendum was 2,035 to 56, with 27.3 per cent of eligible voters in 37 rice growing counties participating. This was a favorable percentage of 97.3.

Bulletin

BOSTON (AP)—The new Washington Senators selected Bobby Shantz, Gene Woodling, Dick Donovan, Willie Tasby and Dale Long among the 28 men picked today from other American League teams. The new Los Angeles team picked Ted Kluszewski, Bob Cerv, Ned Garver, Eddie Yost and Ken Aspromonte.

Each of the two new clubs in the 10-team league picked the required 28 players at $75,000 each for a total of $2,100,000. Each of the "old" teams lost seven players for $525,000.

Los Angeles had first choice. The selections were made by categories. The 10 pitchers were taken first, then two catchers, six infielders and four outfielders. After that the remaining six could play any position.

Trouble Has Delayed U. S. Moon Shot

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP)—Technical trouble today forced at least a one-day postponement of an attempt to launch an American space craft toward an intended orbit about the moon.

The 364-pound space craft is intended to become the first lunar satellite. Its load of electronic equipment is designed to make the most extensive study yet attempted of the moon's environment.

The countdown on the 90-foot Atlas-Able booster rocket progressed to within seven minutes of the scheduled lift-off time today when the attempt was called off.

The National Aeronautics and Space Administration reported only that technical difficulties had prevented the launch. It did not reveal the nature of the trouble.

Scientists had only a 21-minute span—from 2:58 a. m. to 3:19 a. m. EST—in which to fire the rocket to put it on the proper course to the moon, 240,000 miles away. When it became apparent the trouble could not be corrected in time, the shot was postponed.

Today was the second day of a five-day period in which the moon is in a favorable position for the launching. If the trouble is minor, another launch effort may be made Thursday. If the Atlas-Able does not get off the ground by Saturday, the shot will be put off until the next ideal period, 28 days from now.

The space craft carries instruments to measure such space phenomena as radiation, magnetism, fields and micrometeorites. This data could help prepare for manned flight to the moon.

Vote Heavy to Keep Farm Supports

WASHINGTON (AP)—Cotton and rice farmers cast heavy favorable votes in Tuesday's referendums to continue marketing quotas which require planting controls but guarantee price supports for the 1961 crops.

Farmers who grow both upland cotton and extra long staple cotton as well as rice voted for over the required two-thirds majority to continue the agricultural department's price support operations.

The preliminary vote for the upland cotton program was 104,019 for and 6,442 against, or 96.0 per cent in favor. The vote for the extra long staple cotton program was 899 to 104, or a favorable percentage of 89.7. The vote for the rice program was 5,520 for and 635 against, or 91.2 per cent favorable.

"The films are designed to bring non-readers to the third grade level of reading and writing in 98 half-hour lessons."

The films are to be made available by an Arkansas foundation which preferred to remain unidentified.

ALC Okays Driver Responsibility Plan

LITTLE ROCK (AP)—The Arkansas Legislative Council's Insurance and Corporations Committee Tuesday approved in principle a proposed driver responsibility plan, but a joint senate-house committee of the 1961 State Legislature will have to work out details.

Under the plan, uninsured motorists or those unable to prove financial responsibility would be required to pay a specified amount into a special fund from which damage claims and awards against them would be paid.

"We have to do something to protect the financially responsible driver," Woodruff Rep. Jack S. Oakes said. Of a plan to have motorists insure themselves against those who were not insured or lacked financial responsibility, Oakes said "this is unfair."

He said such a plan would make "the responsible driver assume the other guy's responsibility."

Vote Change Is Out, Says the Governor

LITTLE ROCK (AP) — Gov. Orval B. Faubus said today he wouldn't try to switch the Arkansas electoral votes away from Sen. John F. Kennedy.

He was asked for comment on a meeting at Jackson, Miss., Monday, when pledged electors from Alabama and Mississippi said they would try to enlist support from other Southern states in their effort to prevent Kennedy from becoming president.

"Arkansas electors run as Democrats but technically at least, are not pledged to Kennedy. They have said they will vote for him next Monday."

Faubus told a news conference he felt the Arkansas electors "were chosen with the full understanding of what they were going to do and any effort to change their minds should properly come from the people who elected them."

"I don't think any official because of his position, would be acting properly if he attempted to change their votes without a clear indication of a change in public sentiment."

Faubus, who once was nominated for president by the National States Rights Party, said before the election that, as a Democratic official, he would vote for Kennedy.

On another subject, Faubus said "I guess you can say I named him" when he was asked if he was responsible for the selection of Rep. Marion H. Crank of Little River County as chairman of the Joint Budget Committee for the next legislative session.

Faubus several months ago took a hand in ending an impending controversy over who would be speaker of the House.

Both Crank and Rep. John P. Bethell of Prairie County were candidates.

Bethell got the speaker's job, but Faubus said this had nothing to do with the selection of Crank.

Some weeks ago Bethell said he was going to invite Faubus to select the chairman of the House Budget Committee, who under a system of alternating the job between the two legislative chambers, will serve in the 191 session as chairman also of the Joint Budget Committee.

The grant for Arkansas State is for an institute in biology, chemistry, earth science, mathematics and physics for high school teachers.

The university will get $59,200 for an institute in biology, chemistry, general science and physics for high school teachers. Another

$1,000 BRUSH

HAIR STYLES come and go, but no substitute has been found in 183 years for the natural bristle in brushes which beautifies hair. The story of Kent of London, world's oldest brushmaker, and the search for the elusive bristle come alive in a book, "A Short History of the House of Kent," by Doris Woodall, M.A., director of Kent.

Fashions in brushes have changed, but a good brush still calls for masterly hand skills in working the bristle. A unique example is the heirloom Dover Brush. It takes 20 years to collect its 4520 5-inch-long bristles. The same craftsmanship is used for all Kent brushes—the Crew Cut Brush, the Diplomat for men's thinning hair, the Debutante, Kent Baby Brush and the more traditional styles.

Kent, Miss Woodall notes, goes far afield to find the precious bristle—from India to Burma; whalebone comes from the Antarctic; timbers from the tropics. Kent makes the majority of fine imported toilet brushes sold here.

5 Children Found Alive in the Woods

CLAYTON, N.C. (AP) — Five missing children, who spent the night in woods during subfreezing weather, were found cold and shivering but unharmed today, huddled together under a big tree.

The State Highway Patrol said two searchers came upon the children about 8:30 a.m. They were reported in good condition but were brought here for medical examination.

An estimated 1,500 persons, aided by lights from helicopters, trooped through 80 square miles of woods most of the night.

Two searchers, Kenneth Johnson and Jack Raines, said the children were beneath a big tree in a thick patch of briars which apparently helped protect them from the bitter cold which dropped as low as 15 degrees.

"It's a well-clothed man can do to survive out here tonight," Deputy Sheriff E. W. Creech of Johnston County had remarked during the hunt.

Farm Bureau Hits Union Organizers

By OVID A. MARTIN

DENVER, Colo. (AP) — The American Farm Bureau Federation convention struck today at what it called monopolistic practices of organized labor and criticized moves of some unions to organize farmers.

Federation President Charles B. Shuman told the annual farm meeting that much of the unemployment in the country's steel industry could be attributed to unjustified wage increases that have helped to price steel out of its markets, he said.

Resolutions to be submitted to the convention later this week hit at recent efforts on West Coast and in some sections of the Northeast to unionize farmers and farm laborers.

"The concentration of economic power in labor unions permits resort to the resolutions stated 'to measures which if used by any other economic group, would result in drastic antitrust action.'"

Several members of the Resolutions Committee predicted the day will come, and perhaps soon, when organized agriculture's biggest battle will be to head off unionization efforts in the farm field.

"The methods and procedures authorized for labor unions are unworkable when applied to the marketing and pricing of farm products," the resolutions said.

As to farm policy, the resolutions stuck pretty closely to those adopted a year ago. They call for a minimum of government intervention in agriculture or a rejection of farm programs advanced by President-elect John F. Kennedy.

"The Kennedy program — which Shuman predicted Congress will reject — would impose rigid production and supply controls on farm products and raise price supports as major devices for eliminating troublesome farm surpluses and raising farm income, he said.

homes. The home is about three-fourths of a mile from Clayton where the children attended school.

The children who came to the home recently, are Shirley Pearson, 13, and James R. Pearson, 11, wards of the Davidson County Welfare Department, and Tula Pay Tester, 12, Nina C. Walker, 6, and Dennis Walker, 11, wards of the Caldwell County Welfare Department.

Medical Note on Virus and Anemia

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Defenses against virus diseases and a question on anemia are among the week's medical notes.

Dry Skin Treatment — A daily bath in water containing a little oil reduced annoying dryness of skin in 90 per cent of patients, a physician reports.

Their skin became softer and smoother, and patients reported benefits in such problems as aged skin burn scars and skin inflammations. The bath is not a cure, and dryness reappears if the bathing is stopped. But Dr. Gustav Weissberg thinks it was more beneficial in relieving skin troubles than ointments, creams and lotions.

Virus Disease Defenses — Researchers have found three types of chemicals which prevent viruses from multiplying without hurting normal cells.

Future studies will show whether these or related substance can be useful in preventing or treating human virus diseases, which include the common cold, flu, polio and smallpox, says Dr. Igor Tamm of the Rockefeller Institute.

The three virus inhibitors are a synthetic chemical nicknamed HBB, a mold product known as helicine, and substances produced by virus action and known as interferons. Each protects cells in test tubes against viral damage and shows some protective activity in experimental virus infections in animals, he adds.

Anemia and Vitamins — Proposition: "Anemia is usually caused by vitamin deficiencies."

"Wrong, very wrong," says Dr. Richard W. Vilter of the University of Cincinnati.

Most Americans get enough vitamins in their daily food and not more than four per cent of anemia in this country is due to vitamin deficiency, he reports.

Some 18 per cent of cases are due to iron deficiency and from chronic loss of blood and the rest to cases not connected with the diet.

Sleep Pill — Anxiety is a common cause of insomnia. Tranquilizers can relieve anxiety.

Reasoning that a combination of a tranquilizer and a habit-forming sleeping pill might make it easier to get to sleep, Dr. Wesley W. Bare of Philadelphia tested such a combination on a group of elderly patients.

The combination permitted using less customary amounts of the habit-forming, he said, and worked better than the sleeping

Often called "Tri Facial Neuralgia," is a very painful condition, usually in one side of the face. Others Make Rough the Course of True Love

By HELEN WORDEN ERSKINE

Dear Helen: At 15 all girls seemed the same to me. Then I saw the girl of my dreams, two months before I got my driver's license. All I could think about was her.

It took me three weeks after I got my driver's license to work up enough nerve to ask her for a date. She accepted. Three months later I asked her to go steady.

From then on, everybody seemed out to break us up. People would tell her I was two-timing and run to me with the same stuff about her. We settled this once and for all by promising to believe only each other. Now our main problem is parents and relatives. They say we are too young to know what love is and that our romance is only sex attraction.

Our 21 months record of nothing more than a few affectionate kisses proves how wrong they are. I love and respect this girl and, for that reason, can't touch her.

Three weeks ago we announced our engagement and set the date of our marriage for September, 1961. People still say we aren't mature enough to make marriage a success. I will soon be 18, my girl is now 16. We love each other, have the same background, are used to hard farming work and have only one desire — to make each other happy. Why then, despite our youth, can't our marriage be successful? —P.M.M.

Dear P.M.M.: The directness and sincerity of your letter alone indicate that your marriage can and will be a success, no matter what your age. Ordinarily I might agree with your relatives and friends about you both being too young to know your own minds but there are exceptions to every rule and — you are obviously the exception! Pay no attention to what others say. Just go on loving your girl and planning for the future. May you and she have a long and happy marriage.

Reds Say U. S. Planes Used in Algeria

By WILLIAM N. OATIS UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP) — The Soviet Union charged today that U.S. U-2 reconnaissance planes are being used to photograph the positions of Algerian rebel forces and U.S.-made bombs are being used to kill them.

The charge was made by Soviet Deputy Foreign Minister Vladimir A. Zorin before the General Assembly's 99-nation Political Committee. The committee is considering Algerian demands for a U.N. vote in settling the future of the strife-torn North African territory.

The accused Prince of wholesale slaughter and said President Charles de Gaulle had the backing of "the new-fangled holy alliance of NATO."

U.S. bombs, helicopters and other equipment and weapons are being used by the French forces in Algeria, Zorin said. He did not say whether U.S. or French pilots piloted the U-2 planes. But he asserted that NATO bases in North Africa, manned by U.S. personnel, are being used by the French in their campaign against the rebels.

Diplomats backing the Algerian rebels showed confidence that the General Assembly would call for a U.N. referendum on self-determination in Algeria. They expected the new wave of violence to strengthen their position in the United Nations.

TIME FOR VIOLENCE

By Noel M. Loomis

© Noel M. Loomis 1960. Distributed by Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

THE STORY: Bart Wagner flies up to a lonely ranchhouse in the Texas Panhandle where desperadoes had set fire to a shed. He helps the woman living on the place to extinguish the fire, but she does not trust him and holds him at a distance with a rifle.

Chapter II

He went over to the cottonwood and got down easily, keeping his slung arms clear. He lifted a limp stalk of bear-grass blooms from the board and read the inscription burned in with a bridge-bit ring: "Ben Davis, murdered June 18, 1883, RIP." A brand, the same as that on the front door, was burned under the inscription. He replaced the wilted stalk and walked slowly back toward the house. "I'm sorry, ma'am."

A sudden thought seemed to come to her. "Are you a Texas Ranger?" she asked hopefully.

He said regretfully, "No, ma'am. It's too late anyway for a Ranger to help you, isn't it?"

She said, "He could keep them from coming back."

He nodded slightly. That explained a lot of things: the dead dog, the horse in the corral, still unmoving, the chickens that did not scratch and did not cluck. He looked back at the woman and said, "It might be I could give you a lift, ma'am."

"Which side are you on?" she demanded.

He laughed easily, trying to reassure her. "I'm not on any side. Right now I'm plumb by myself like a skunk in the middle of a Fourth of July barbecue." He had hoped for a smile, but it didn't come. "I stopped by to see if I could wangle a meal," he said, and refrained from reminding her that he had helped her put out the fire on the shed.

She stared at his slung arm. "Since you're on the scout, you're probably an outlaw, all right—but you better come in. You helped me, and I can feed you. And maybe your arm needs some attention."

"Thank you, ma'am."

He went to the horse, flipped loose the cinch strap, took the heavy saddle with all its trappings by the horn with his right hand, and lifted it off in one powerful sweep. He turned the saddle and dropped it on its side, rifle boot up. He pulled the blanket from inside the saddle and snapped it free of twigs it had picked up from the ground, then laid it across the saddle. He went to the black, unfasted throat latch, pulled the headband over the black's ears with his good arm. He threw the bridle over his left shoulder and slapped the black on the rump. "Stay close now." He dropped the bridle across the saddle and went into the house.

"You're welcome to eat," she said, acknowledging his needs, "but I'll have no foolishness." She looked pointedly at the 44's in his holsters. "If you make any move toward your guns, I'll shoot without warning."

Amused, he said, "That old Sharps won't swing very fast, will it?"

She ignored the question. "If you're one of Xenophon Jones's outfit," she said, "I know you won't shoot me. They just want to run me off."

this ranch to hold his stolen stock."

"I've heard a little about Xenophon Jones," he observed.

She said with obvious feeling, "because the courts are so far away, he carries on his outlawry like a business. Everybody knows him and knows what he is, but he doesn't hide. He comes and goes as he pleases, even in the towns."

"And the law?"

"What law?" she demanded. "Captain Arrington is the only lawman in the Panhandle."

Bart said after a pause, "I'm not a Jones man or any other outlaw. I was a lawman in El Paso and killed four brothers in a gunfight. I got a clean bill from the coroner, but some don't recognize that, and there is still talk against me, and the only way I can clear it up is to find an old man who sided the brothers. I heard he is in the Panhandle, and I came to look for him."

"What was his name?" she asked.

"Nobody seemed to know," and he skipped out.

She pulled the brass kettle to the front of the stove. "You get along all right with one hand," she noted without turning. "A bullet?"

"He nodded. "Small caliber. Probably a .31. It was a hideout gun."

She glanced at him at last. "He must have been stingy with his powder, or it would have gone on through."

He was drying with his one hand. "I went through the edge of a door first."

"I hope there wasn't any paint on the door," she said, picking up a big fork. "That is poison in a bullet hole."

He looked at her again. She was not the greenhorn he had taken her for.

"Sit down," she said, "and get started." She moved toward the rough table. "I can hear your stomach growling from over here."

He heard the heavy crockery dish thump on the homestead table. He looked for the rifle, and saw it had been moved to a spot near the door, where she could get it without reaching over the tight pile of wood at the end of the stove.

"It's antelope," she said, indicating the meat. "Quick-killed."

She had cut the meat into pieces he could handle with a fork. He ate three or four mouthfuls before he sat back to draw a breath. Food had never tasted that good.

"Mighty fine light-bread," he said.

She stared at him for a moment, but he could not read her thoughts. She seemed about to say something, but then her long-pent up feelings broke through her reserve, and she suddenly pulled both hands to her face and began to sob.

He was taken aback. He thought her crying would stop in a moment, but to his dismay the sobs grew louder and most anguished, and tears dropped from her fingers to the floor. He got up hurriedly, not bothering to push his chair back but dismounting from it as he would have done from a horse. He went around the table and patted her clumsily on the shoulder.

Unexpectedly he found her weeping on his chest, and put his good hand on her shoulder.

Her tears lessened gradually, but his shirt and his blackskin vest showed damp spots. She backed away, wiping her face on the corner of her apron.

"He went to the stove and poured two big cups of coffee and took them to the table."

She sat down, then looked up as he hesitated. "There's sugar on the shelf," she said.

He carried the crock to the table. "Tell me the whole story," he said.

"For four years," she said slowly, "I needed to talk—not all the time—just once in a while. Once a month—once a year, even." She paused. "For four years I did not get to talk to a woman."

"Mrs. Goodnight was over on the J.A. wasn't she?"

She looked at the table. "Ben didn't like women for company on the ranch."

Bart realized he did not need to ask more questions.

"We moved up from Denison in 1879," she said, calling up the thoughts in her memory. "It was a new country, and Ben said the opportunities were wonderful. But with no law, the outlaws got a hold, and spread out all over the Panhandle. Mr. Goodnight said not long ago there were four to six hundred outlaws."

"Billy the Kid is gone," he said.

"French John is still up along the Canadian, and he has 300 men, Pierre Marlin, Xenophon Jones, Archevogue Goodnight and a dozen smaller gangs are all over the plains."

He blew on his coffee, and tasted it, but it was still too hot. "Two months ago," she went on, "Xenophon Jones and a half a dozen men came onto our place. Ben had put up a fence around the spring because there is a bog just below it, but Jones cut the wire and took his horses right into the spring."

"Then your husband went up there to run them off, but they killed him," Bart suggested.

Bart had a feeling he had guessed only partly right, and he waited to hear the rest. Then her eyes filled again with tears.

"They brought his body to the front door. And they said I had a week to get off the land."

"Then I take it you've been happy here."

"Not!" she said with astonishing vehemence. "I was never happy here. I hated it for a long time. I hated it until yesterday afternoon—when I buried Ben."

When I got through shoveling in the dirt, I realized that I had left my family of my own free will. At the time I left, I might have thought Ben had enough money to make up for the difference between him and me."

She looked at him challengingly, but he did not comment. "But whatever I thought, and however I felt after we came out here, I did my best. I was the best wife I knew how to be."

"But now you're too proud to go back to your folks, and you've found out also that the land itself means something to you."

She took a deep breath. "A lot more than I thought before." She was silent for a moment. "I'm only sorry I had to wait till Ben died to see it."

CHAPTER III
Bart finished his coffee. "What happened to her horse out there in the corral?"

"That was Ben's riding horse. They shot it," she said starkly.

They galloped their horses back and forth, yelling and shooting the chickens' heads off. Do you want a job, mister?"

"The suddenness of it caught him off guard. I hadn't thought about that. I might stay around a day or two."

"I won't be able to pay you much until the fall roundup," she said hurriedly. "I don't think Ben has much in the bank. I've got a few dollars I made out of eggs, and I can keep you in tobacco until fall—and I'll pay—I'll pay my debts."

"You've got stock?" he asked, thinking of the work that might have to be done.

"Eighteen hundred head," she said promptly. "With 210 three-year-olds that will bring prime prices in the fall."

"I'll make a deal," he got up wearily. "I've got to get the lead out of my arm. You do that for me, and I'll stay around a couple of weeks or so and give you a hand."

She put another kettle on the stove, and he filled it with water and went outside to get some wood. Coming back in, he neglected to duck, and knocked his hat off against the top door frame.

"I told Ben he made those doors too short," she remarked, reaching up to open the damper.

"It's all right, if you remember," he said, picking up his hat. "Was Ben a little man?"

"No, he was medium." She glanced at Bart. "Half a head shorter than you, though."

"You reckon I could wear some of his work clothes?"

She looked at him, the full length of him. She stared curiously for the first time, at his white, bearded buckskin vest and his striped California pants. "You left somewhere in a hurry. That's plain to be seen."

He glanced down at his inconspicuous clothes. "After I fought the Yagers, I figured I had played my luck pretty far, so I turned in my badge and went to Socorro and opened up a monte game," he said.

"And you fleeced a poor greenhorn of his money, and—"

"No, ma'am," he said patiently. "I was trying to make an honest living, but word got around that Bart Wagner was in town—and it happened just as I had always known it would: the one brother I hadn't killed in El Paso showed up and I had to finish the job."

He thought he saw a touch of fear in her eyes as she said slowly, "So you're Bart Wagner."

She brought out some clean clothes.

Bart went behind the curtain into a sort of pantry. Clumsily and somewhat painfully he removed his clothes and put on the levis. They were all right for him in the waist but six inches short at the bottom. He came out.

She had laid out some old, well-worn copies of the St. Louis Republican, that seemed to have been read a good many times, and put a towel over them.

He gritted his teeth when he sat down and tried to lift his arm onto the table.

Watching his face, she nodded. "I thought it would be stiff."

He liked her air of competence and the gentle touch of her fingers as she felt for the bullet. It had lodged in the triceps muscle underneath, and he stiffened when she touched the spot where it rested.

"I can see you know what you're doing, ma'am," he said.

She looked at him and said cheerfully, "I'll use crochet hooks to get it out. I've done it before—when the Kiowas raided Holt's Corner. My father had two bullets and an arrowhead, and I got plenty of practice. My grandmother showed me how."

She went behind the curtain and came back with a quart bottle of Cedar Valley. "Will that be enough?"

The bottle was three-fourths full. "This will do nicely," he said, "and it will leave some for next time."

He took three big swallows out of the bottle, and set it on the table in front of him as she brought the crochet hooks. She took a lid off the stove and held the hooks in the open fire until they were red hot, then took them out, let them cool, and laid them on the towel. By that time the water in one kettle was boiling. Hastily he turned up the bottle and took two more swallows. He hoped it would work fast.

"You say when you're ready," she told him.

He took another drink to speed it up. The whisky went through him in seconds. He looked at her. All he could see for a moment was a light black curl, the size of a half-dollar, lying flat against golden-brown skin. Then her brown eyes came into his focus.

"All right," he said.

Farmers Told Not to Back Kennedy Plan

By OVID A. MARTIN

DENVER (AP)—A major farm organization leader today urged the new Congress to turn thumbs down on the farm program of President-elect John F. Kennedy.

President Charles B. Shuman of the American Farm Bureau Federation declared farmers rejected the Kennedy proposals at the recent presidential election. Most Midwestern farm states voted for Vice President Richard M. Nixon, Kennedy's Republican opponent.

"This election should end for all time the fiction that farmers want more government regulation and price determination in this business," Shuman said.

The farm leader expressed this opinion in a speech prepared for the opening session of the federation's four-day national convention and at a news conference.

Shuman himself is a registered Democrat. He spoke against the Democratic farm program during the campaign.

The Kennedy proposals called for more rigid production and marketing controls and for higher farm income guarantees than espoused by the Eisenhower administration and favored in the past by the Farm Bureau.

The Farm Bureau hopes to come up with proposals that might help sidetrack the Democratic program. Platform drafters worked on a land retirement program that would require farms

State Board Comes to Aid of Arch Ford

By WICK TEMPLE

LITTLE ROCK (AP)—The Arkansas State Board of Education today adopted unanimously a resolution supporting Education Commissioner Arch Ford who faces an apparent attempt by some legislators to oust him from his job.

The statement called Ford "able, dedicated and efficient."

Without referring directly to the legislative move, the board said it had no desire to replace Ford or any member of his staff.

Ford said he appreciated "the expression of confidence" and added he believed his staff would also.

He declined further comment and specifically refused to discuss action of the Arkansas Legislative Council, which last week voted to raise the education commissioner's salary from $10,000 to $12,000 annually but also to require that the official hold a doctor's degree.

Ford has a master's degree but not a doctor's.

The matter still is to come before the Legislature, which meets next month.

The board's statement contained only two paragraphs.

It said: "It is the opinion of the State Board of Education that Commissioner Arch Ford has been an to idle a part of the land used to grow surplus crops if they wanted price support aid.

Such a plan would be much broader than a soil bank plan set up by the present administration, but which Congress refused to extend beyond this year. Under this plan, farmers were not required to retire land to get price supports.

No Resistance to Affidavit Law Ruling

LITTLE ROCK (AP) — A spokesman for the state Education Department said no resistance is expected to Monday's U. S. Supreme Court decision which nullified Arkansas' controversial teacher affidavit law.

The high court held that the law—Act 10 of 1958—“goes far beyond what might be justified in the exercise of the state's legitimate inquiry into the fitness and competency of its teachers.”

The law, passed at a special legislative session in 1958, required teachers to list organizational affiliations and contributions for five years past. Many educators had criticized it.

“As long as it was a valid law, the Little Rock School Board required compliance with it,” Little Rock School Board president Everett Tucker said. “It's invalidation, however, will have no apparent adverse effect on the operation of Little Rock's schools.”

The law had been appealed by attorneys for B. T. Shelton, a former Little Rock Negro teacher, Max Carr, former University of Arkansas music teacher, and Ernest Gephart, Little Rock Central High School printing instructor. The suits were consolidated before the high tribunal.

Shelton maintained that the law was aimed at the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People and similar groups. Carr and Gephart contended that the information demanded by the affidavits went beyond the state's right of inquiry into fitness.

'King of World' Promises All

FAYETTEVILLE, Ark. (AP) — “I will put an end to both segregation and integration,” Bishop Homer A. Tomlinson, self-proclaimed “King of the World,” told some 1,500 University of Arkansas students Monday.

Tomlinson, predicted he'll get the South's 52 electoral votes when the electoral college meets Dec. 19, and that he will then be elected president.

But the 66-year-old Church of God (Pentecostal Holiness church) bishop conceded that it would take a miracle for him to get elected. “We want a miracle,” the students chanted as they followed the self-styled “king” down the main campus street to a theater where he delivered a 15-minute speech. Tomlinson is touring colleges pleading for students to urge their presidential electors to vote for him.

Dynamiting at College Probed

LITTLE ROCK (AP) — The Pulaski County Grand Jury today begins an investigation of an attempted dynamiting at Philander Smith College for Negroes last July 12.

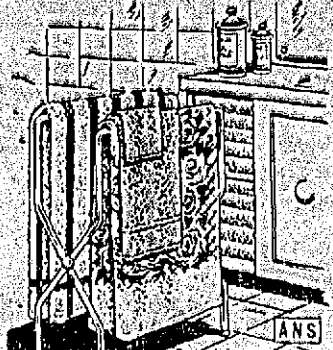

Emmett Miller, 44, and Robert Lloyd Parks, 38, both of West Memphis, were arrested by FBI agents near a college dormitory outside which a 30-stick dynamite bomb was found. Hugh Lynn Adams, 33, was taken into custody at his home at Bassett.

It was presumed that the three would appear before the jury although Prosecutor J. Frank Holt declined to identify any of the witnesses.

Miller, Parks and Adams were originally charged with interstate transportation of dynamite, but the federal charges were dropped Oct. 14 and the case turned over to county authorities.

The first college in the United States to offer the laboratory method of teaching chemistry as a part of its regular curriculum was Rensselaer Polytechnic Institute. That was in the 1830s.

Committee Heads Picked by ALC

LITTLE ROCK (AP) — Perry Rep. Paul Van Dalsem will head the 1961 revenue and taxation committee of the Arkansas House of Representatives, and Crittenden Rep. Cecil B. Nance will be chairman of a committee on reapportionment.

Prairie Rep. John Bethell, who will be house speaker, made the appointments Monday. Bethell also named Rep. Marion Crank to be chairman of the budget committee and Chicot Rep. Ben Bynum was appointed chairman of the house efficiency committee.

The committee on reapportionment will have to come up with a congressional redistricting plan to reduce the state's districts from six to four, and will also have to act on a reapportionment of the state House of Representatives.

Harpooning Sacred Cows Is Specialty

ON THE LIGHTER SIDE
By DICK WEST
United Press International

WASHINGTON (UPI) — There is an Englishman now floating around this country who is really a caution. This bloke, who travels under the improbable name of Malcolm Muggeridge, specializes in harpooning sacred cows. He is to draw a rather far-fetched caricature, a sort of literary Mort Sahl.

Muggeridge functioned for a number of years as editor of “Punch,” an English-language magazine aimed at the carriage trade and noted, among other things, for the pugnacity of its cartoons.

There are some who say that “Punch” has an American counterpart in the “New Yorker” magazine. But from limited observation, I would say, it could better be described as a sexless “Playboy.”

At any rate, few British institutions, including the royal family, have escaped being festooned with the brimstone of Muggeridge's tongue and pen. This makes him a rather unusual U.S. visitor.

Works A Switch

The normal run of English authors and lecturers who come here to disgorge enlightenment and, incidentally, to salt away few shillings in fees and royalties, can hardly wait until they get back home so they can regale with tales of our mercenary and bumptious behavior.

Muggeridge, however, works a switch. No sooner is he on our shores than he starts to harpoon the shibboleths of his own countrymen. This naturally is confusing to us Americans.

For instance, he told a college audience in South Carolina recently that Sir Winston Churchill, whose books are best sellers in America, is a “very bad writer” with a prose style that is “the worst penned by man.”

To experts Mr. Churchill has immortalized himself by writing, “Be England what she will, with all her faults, she is my country still.”

I wonder what Muggeridge will have to say about that.

At any rate, it's obvious that our English visitor was just being facetious in tweeking Sir Winston's literary style. We know that he knows that Churchill isn't the worst writer. Such a tribute can only be properly bestowed on Williams Shakespeare.

Monotony in Same Role All Time

By CYNTHIA LOWRY
AP TV-Radio Writer

NTW YORK (AP) — There is, concededly, inevitable monotony in playing the same role year after year, no matter how successful the actor's vehicle.

“But there are certain definite compensations, and they aren't all money,” says Hugh O'Brien, now playing his sixth season as ABC's Wyatt Earp.

O'Brien, cast and production crew work like dogs for five or six months, turning out a full year's supply of the Westerns at the rate of two a week.

“I keep my nose to the grindstone for that time,” said O'Brien, “but after they are finished I have six or seven months of the year to do a whole range of things I'm interested in.”

“Wyatt Earp” will be finished for this season, as far as O'Brien is concerned, on Jan. 6. During the period after that he will be free to take on—preferably non-Western—other acting jobs, personal appearance dates, even to travel and do nothing.

O'Brien took advantage of a short break in his tight shooting schedule to fly to New York, primarily to make arrangements with the owners of the stage play, “Destry Rides Again” for right to convert the hit into a two-hour TV special. O'Brien played Destry for a week on Broadway last season, and hopes to be in the TV special next year sometime.

CBS, unhappy at the way its news and public affairs department has been dropping behind NBC in terms of audience popularity, has reacted to trouble in classic American style: formed a committee. This one, composed of the network's very top executives, will make policy about what news and public affairs shows get to the air.

Meanwhile, in an effort to recapture some of the dial turners who defected to Huntley-Brinkley, there may be some drastic shifts among the on-camera personnel.

The network is busily revising and juggling shows on its Thursday night schedule. “Person to Person,” long on CBS invalid list, will finally succumb to ratings trouble after the Dec. 22 show and the “June Allyson Show” will be moved into the Monday night 10-11 p.m. spot. That leaves a Thursday night 10-11 free to be filled alternately by “CBS Reports” and “Face the Nation.”

Freshmen Senators to Be Briefed

LITTLE ROCK (AP) — The six freshmen members of the Arkansas Senate are to be briefed today on procedures they will face when the state Legislature convenes next month.

The 29 new members of the lower chamber were instructed yesterday at the opening session of the 18th Institute of Legislative Procedure. The institute is sponsored by the Legislative Council, the University of Arkansas Law School and the university's division of general extension.

Among speakers Monday was Prairie Rep. John Bethell, who will be house speaker in the 1961 legislature.

Union Group to May Legislation

LITTLE ROCK (AP) — A meeting of union legislative workers to discuss coordination of their efforts may be called this week.

New AFL-CIO President George Ellison said the state union's executive committee discussed legislative prospects at a meeting Saturday. He said he might call the joint legislative session, which he had proposed earlier, this week.

The AFL-CIO executive committee named working committees. Ellison heads the legislative committee and the Arkansas Union Labor Bulletin editorial board.

AFL-CIO Secretary-Treasurer Bill Becker is chairman of the education and public relations committee and Charles Scott, of the United Auto Workers in Little Rock is head of the budget and finance committee.

More Votes to Amend a Bill

LITTLE ROCK (AP) — A rules change approved by a rules subcommittee of the Arkansas House of Representatives would require 51 votes to amend a bill, instead of a majority of those present.

Cleveland Rep. Raymond L. Mays, chairman of the House Rules Committee, said another change recommended by the subcommittee Tuesday would require the house speaker's duties to be outlined in “understandable” language.

Mays said most of the revisions dealt with a reshuffling of existing regulations. The full committee now has to pass on the revisions.

Four on Picket Line Are Fined

JONESBORO, Ark. (AP) — Four men charged in connection with a picket line disturbances during a strike at the General Electric plant here last October were fined $10 each in Municipal Court today.

Dale Williams, Clyde E. Graham, Kenneth Slaggs and Willard E. Walker, all of Jonesboro, entered pleas of “no contest” to charges of obstructing traffic. Charges of interfering with an officer were not prosecuted.

The men were identified by police as union pickets. The alleged disturbances occurred while non-union workers were entering or leaving the struck plant.

GOPs Lose Attempts for Court Tests

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Republicans have lost court tests in their attempts to overturn President-elect John F. Kennedy's winning margins in Illinois and Texas. At the same time official returns from all but three states cut still further Kennedy's popular vote over Vice President Richard M. Nixon.

New York's official canvass Monday sliced 20,859 votes from the Kennedy total compiled unofficially right after the Nov. 8 election. That gave Kennedy a nationwide popular vote margin over Nixon of 114,850, out of more than 68 million votes cast. The margin has not been that low since early in the vote counting on election night.

Only Illinois, Massachusetts and Rhode Island have not yet reported official vote counts. As they stand now the popular vote totals are Kennedy 34,220,364 and Nixon 34,105,505. Kennedy still is credited with 300 electoral votes, however—31 more than the 269 minimum needed to win.

In another development, unpledged electors from Mississippi and Alabama met in Jackson, Miss., and said they would vote for Sen. Harry F. Byrd, D-Va., for president. They urged other Southern states to join their cause hoping to throw the election into the House of Representatives. It is considered very unlikely that this will happen.

There was no immediate comment from Byrd, who supported neither presidential candidate in the campaign. The eight unpledged electors from Mississippi and the six from Alabama have not been counted either way in determining Kennedy's electoral vote total of 300.

In Texas, which has 24 electoral votes, U.S. Dist. Court Judge Ben C. Connally ruled that his court had no jurisdiction to rule on the Republican challenge of the election result. He also said there was no proof that anyone's rights had been violated when thousands of Texas ballots were voided for technical reasons.

In Illinois, with 27 electoral votes, State Circuit Judge Thomas E. Kluczyński dismissed two suits by Republicans against Democratic-dominated Cook County and Chicago Election Boards. They demanded that official canvass results be altered in favor of Nixon.

The National Electoral College will go through its traditional ceremony of electing the president on Dec. 19, less than a week from now. Once that occurs, Kennedy's election will be official.

Literally a "Living" Room With Care Cut to a Minimum

MUSIC-MAKING DRAWS YOUNG AND OLD ALIKE to the piano—and the more the merrier if the family living room is designed for fun, and for easy clean-up afterwards.

Experts suggest using carpeting under the piano for best tone quality. This thick carpet of pure 501 nylon by Cabin Crafts makes a handsome and thoroughly practical background for family music—it's long wearing and easy to clean. Because of the strength of the 501 nylon fiber, the carpet will stand up even under the weight of a Steinway grand.

Simple, full draperies make the room cozy, help absorb the sound of young piano practice. The long, comfortable sofa invites family listening and relaxation.
